

AG&P to hire 5,000 local workers to support major heavy industry plant and infrastructure projects in Philippines

Workers needed to support contracts awarded across the oil and gas, petrochemicals and power generation sectors

MANILA, PHILIPPINES 13 November 2018: Atlantic Gulf & Pacific (AG&P), a global leader in gas logistics and construction services, is hiring 5,000 skilled workers in addition to its over 2000-strong workforce, to support its strong re-entry into the domestic heavy industry construction market.

The company has been awarded major contracts that will generate an additional 5,000 jobs in the Philippines. With the multiple contracts to be executed over a two-year period, AG&P is recruiting qualified engineers, welders, painters, cutters, fitters, electrical and instrumentation experts among others, to execute a broad range of services including: shop fabrication; general construction works; structural, piping and mechanical erection; and electrical and instrumentation installation works for the local oil and gas, petrochemicals, power infrastructure and power plant projects.

“AG&P expects to play a significant role in the Philippines’ new era of infrastructure and development and is already participating in major projects as a main, general or electro-mechanical contractor. These major awards will create excellent opportunities for local Filipino workers to obtain world-class skills, professional training and hands-on experience while providing a significant contribution to the Philippine economy,” said Alex Gamboa, Vice President, Business Development, Philippines.

“A cross-section of skilled workforce will be employed and trained in-house at AG&P’s dedicated training facilities, ensuring they are fully compliant with AG&P’s rigorous HSEQ standards and procedures. They will be trained to deliver to international standards of quality, with the technical capability to build, erect, install and maintain these complex facilities”, he added.

With a heritage of award-winning execution and a world leading construction safety record, AG&P provides competitive infrastructure solutions with global standards of safety and quality for the Philippines’ Build Build Build program.

AG&P has been a leader in the Philippines construction industry for more than a century and played a key role in building landmark infrastructure projects including utilities, bridges, commercial buildings and large-scale industrial plants. AG&P holds a “AAAA” contractor’s license, the highest rating given by the Philippine Contractors Accreditation Board (PCAB), for its technical capabilities, financial strength, outstanding construction track record and credentials.
